Two Kinross Nevada Reps Visit
 ISU Tech Expo

Haley Hastie and Nate Hamilton visit with some students interested in a career in mining. Read about their trip to the ISU Tech Expo on pages 2 & 3.

Searching for Skilled Labor for Kinross Nevada

The economy is currently experiencing a nationwide labor shortage of skilled jobs. Employers are finding it tough to fill these gaps for many reasons. The biggest reason is that their skilled labor is retiring en masse. That is why our Kinross recruiting team is looking to new areas, new states and new trades schools to fill positions within Kinross Nevada.

Haley Hastie is leading these efforts and in March took a trip with RMGC's Maintenance General Foreman Nate Hamilton to see what Idaho State University's Diesel/On-Site Power Generation Technology program has to offer.

The Diesel / On-Site Power Generation Technology program at ISU offers the student the opportunity to learn the proper procedures for servicing, maintaining and repairing all parts of the diesel equipment utilized in farming, construction and mining industries. Students at ISU receive a thorough training in the use of the necessary specialized tools and equipment. The program is designed to provide the graduates with the skill and training required prior to entering the diesel mechanics field.

While at the ISU tech expo Haley and Nate met with all current students enrolled in the Diesel/On-Site Power Generation Technology program. They discussed the benefits of a career in mining and the values that make Kinross the employer of choice for so many. Over the course of the two day recruitment trip the team also was able to engage with the over 3000+ high school students that attended the first day of the tech expo.

If you are interested in a career as a diesel mechanic or would like more information on trade schools in Nevada and surrounding states please reach out to Haley Hastie in HR or Samantha Faga in CSR 775-377-3231.
